Crested Butte

March 2-9, 2024

Crested Butte is solitarily and dramatically beautiful, towering above the western Victorian town that lies peacefully a mile from the base. The town has a nickname of the Wildflower Capital of Colorado and a motto of "A National Historic District" boasting the largest concentration of Victorian building in all of Colorado. Crested Butte "the last great ski town" is uncrowded with a local population is only about 1,490 people. Crested Butte offers excellent skiing, and the town offers an atmosphere that is intimate and unpretentious; so, although all-in-all it may be smaller than most resorts, what it offers in a quality ski vacation more than makes up for any perceived lack in quantity.
